A great ovation was given Clark when Mr. Wilson, of Penngylvania, in a speech declared that he would gladly vote for Clark, of Missouri, for the presidency.

Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, was unanimously nominated for chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. His name was proposed by Representative Champ Clark. The caucus lasted four hours and a haif, adjourning about 12:45.

Mr. Underwood, in a statement after the caucus, said that the committee would meet immediately after the close of this Congress and be fully prepared to bring in its tariff bills as soon as Congress reassembled in December.

Denounced by Dies,
Washington, January 15,—Something of a sensation was created in the House to-day when an open letter of Representative Dies, of Texas, a Democrat, attacking to-night's Democratic caucus and dubbing it a "cold deck for the coming caucus, a feast of stale dishes," was read by Representative Caider, a New York Republican. An effort was made by Representative Heflin, of Alabama, to head off the reading of the letter, but without avail.

the reading of the letter, but without avail.

The letter denoursed the caucus as "a frame-up," and the Democrats who "supinely bowed down before these self-sustained successors of Caesar" as "fellow worms," as "Catalines incog," and declared that the handful of men who framed up the committee rewards were "early birds, Catalines in miniature, usurpers and conspirators," who "impudently stuck this cut-and-dried slate before the noses of gentlemen." The letter held that it was cruel mockery to summon the new members to Washington merely to vote as they were told. "Worms inclined to turn were told "Worms inclined to turn will have an opportunity at the caucus," read the letter, which added that the symbol of union "would be a ring in the ness."

Petersburg, Va., January 19.
General R. E. Lee's birthday anniversary was appropriately observed here to-day. The banks and municipal departments and during the afternoon many of the business houses were closed in respect to the day. The Petersburg Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, entertained at tea and bestowed crosses of honor.

tersburg Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, entertained at tea and bestowed crosses of honor.

A. P. Hill Camp of Confederate Veterans celebrated the day by a parade in uniform and with, forty members this afternoon. The line of march was through several of the principal streets, and the gallant veterans marched with the steadiness of step and discipline that characterized them in the days long past. The veterans were escorted by Company G. Second Virginia Regiment, and the handsome cadet gorps of the Petersburg Military Academy. The parade was a handsome one, and was cheered by crowds in the streets. Robert Gilliam was chief marshal. Exercises appropriate to the day were held in the public schols, wheere General Lee was the central object of consideration.

A. P. Hill Camp of Confederate Veterans concluded with the celebration of the day with a splendid banquet served in the Masonic building tonight, at which there were a number of guests and several notable addresses. Among the speakers were Attorney-General Samuel W. Williams, Colonel J. C. Featherstone, of Lynchburg, and James Anderson, the latter a former commander of E. K. Willcox Post, G. A. R., of Springfield, Mass., who came especially to join in the Lee celebration.
